FAQs

Who normally requests an Assessment of Qualifications?

Normally, people request an Assessment of Qualifications because they were asked to do so by an employer or educational institution. If you haven't been asked to request an Assessment of Qualifications, we usually recommend calling us on 1300 467 822 to check this service is right for you.

I'm also applying through QTAC for study, do I need an Assessment of Qualifications?

No. You do not need to apply for an Assessment of Qualifications if you are applying for study through QTAC. When you apply for study through QTAC, we assess your qualifications as part of your application process. This is included in your application fee.

I just want to know my chances of being accepted into a university course. Is this the only way to find out?

You can call QTAC on 1300 467 822 for an estimate of what QTAC selection rank you might expect for your qualifications and/or work experience. We can also walk you through other requirements for current course listings. As the Assessment of Qualifications is not binding and course entry requirements change each year, sometimes a call to QTAC gives you enough information without needing to request an Assessment of Qualifications.

In school, I didn't get an ATAR or an OP, can I still get a selection rank?

In some cases, yes. You might be able to get a selection rank for your work experience, bridging study, military service, tertiary study, and several other qualifications and awards. For more information on what is required to receive a rank in your situation, feel free to contact us before applying for an Assessment of Qualifications.

If you have any questions throughout the application process, feel free to contact QTAC on 1300 467 822 or +61 7 3858 1222 if you are calling from outside of Australia.
